“These presentations are outside of the educational session tracks,” explains Chris Kinard, chief operations officer, Valere Health (exclusive sponsor of Tech Talks). “We were once again able to carve out space on the Expo floor with seating for about 50 people. We are going through the list of exhibitors and extending invitations for technology vendors to come and participate.”

Topics include: Enterprise Resource Planning; RCM – AR; Patient Collections; Patient Management; Sleep Tech; Prescribing; Inventory Management; and Document Management.

In addition to educating attendees, the goal is to drive traffic back to the exhibitor’s booth where additional conversations can take place. “Any attendee is welcome to sit down and have a listen,” Kinard adds. “Valere Health is sponsoring the event. For our part, we are bringing to the industry its first connectivity platform. It is designed to promote interoperability across technology platforms. We hope to bring technology companies together on the stage, give them a platform, and help to stimulate interest.”

Ten exhibitors have signed on for Tech Talks so far and limited additional slots are available. Interested exhibitors may contact Erin Falter at erin.falter@emeraldx.com “Tech Talks is very tech-centric,” Kinard adds, “and that can be a product or a service. We are looking for innovative technology solutions for the industry and keeping our search to those companies. We’ll have signage that guides people to the exact location on the show floor.”
